Biography:

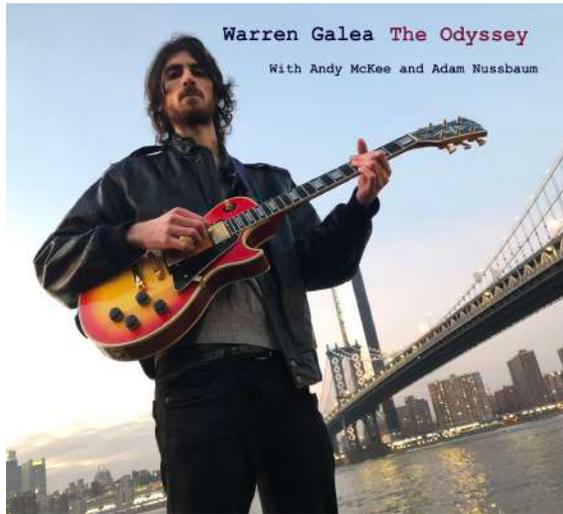

Warren Galea is a Maltese Jazz Guitarist, Pianist, and Composer whose work blends modern Jazz language with Classical structures and experimental composition. He has performed across Europe, the United States, and Asia. In May 2019 he released his debut album: The Odyssey, featuring Andy McKee on bass and Adam Nussbaum on drums. Later that year he became the first Maltese artist to perform at the iconic Blue Note Jazz Club in New York City, playing with his trio in the Blue Note Jazz Festival.

His fourth and latest release, Twelve-Tone Suite (November 2025) is a composition for multiple guitars in 4 movements, all based on a single twelve-tone row. In 2014 Warren was awarded first place in the Malta Jazz Contest. A graduate of the New School for Jazz and Contemporary Music in New York City, his biggest five influences are Mozart, Charlie Parker, The Beatles, Frank Zappa, and Jimi Hendrix.
